

WHOLE EDUCATOR COLLECTIVE

BUILDING THE RELATIONSHIPS THAT SUPPORT LEARNING

Teaching, leading, and learning is a relationship-driven endeavor. Whole Educator Collective is a foundational professional learning focused on how to build relationships that support learning.

Whole Educator Collective builds self-awareness and develops the social-emotional learning and relationship-building skills of those working within a school community.

In this two-day experiential workshop, we create a safe and supportive environment and expertly and gently guide participants in exploring their own relationship histories. We invite them to reflect openly to build their self-awareness of how those narratives drive behavioral patterns that influence the classroom and school community.

Participants gain new social-emotional competencies and communication skills for establishing healthy relationships with fellow educators, staff, families, and most importantly, students.

A SCIENCE-BACKED PROGRAM

Whole Educator Collective uniquely draws from the science of Attachment Theory — the most widely validated field of study on human relationships — that shows that learning occurs within safe and healthy relationships.

Hands down, the best professional development I've ever attended in my life! It was so inspirational and just what I needed - a refuel, rejuvenation, and clarification on so many levels.

S C I E N C E & S K I L L S

In FuelEd's Whole Educator Collective workshop, teachers and leaders:

- Recognize the impact of relationships on the developing brain and its capacity to learn
- Build communication skills to handle challenging relationships and help others grow
- Develop self-awareness about student and adult behaviors that might be triggering
- Identify their own attachment style, how it developed, and how it impacts them today
- Prioritize their emotional well-being by enhancing their self-compassion

WHOLE EDUCATOR COLLECTIVE

Whole Educator Collective equips teachers, leaders, and staff with a science-backed framework for fostering a climate of belonging where all students feel safe, seen, and understood and where secure relationships enable teaching and learning to thrive.

The four components of our Whole Educator Collective workshop are:

The Science of Relationships

Secure Communication

Attachment Styles & Stories

Self-Acceptance & Empowerment

We've translated research-based best practices from counseling psychology into applicable relationship skills training for teachers, leaders and staff.

While other professional learning adds to a teacher's load, Whole Educator Collective provides them with the strategies and skills that lighten it.

WHY CHOOSE WHOLE EDUCATOR COLLECTIVE

District leaders choose FuelEd's Whole Educator Collective because of its ability to build a strong foundation that supports the success of initiatives designed to:

- Develop the capacity of teachers to better deal with student behavior and trauma
- Improve teacher well-being and retention
- Heal teacher secondary traumatic stress and advance trauma-informed practice
- Strengthen teacher-student relationships
- Address critical culture and climate conditions (e.g safety, trust, connection and belonging)
